Feedback sought on Bedell

Members of the Romulus School Board have officially adopted an evaluation form to be used in an employment review of Superintendent of Schools Dr. William Bedell.

The form will also be used by Bedell during the performance evaluations of building administrators. Bedell noted during the regular meeting of the board members last week that district administrators had been given the forms two weeks previously and he had received no feedback from them regarding the documents.

The forms were previously presented to the board by the policy program committee. Bedell noted that he would ask administrators if they had any concerns regarding the forms and report any objections to members of the board at the next meeting.

"I suspect they assumed I was going to do to them what you're going to do to me," he told members of the board.

Bedell's evaluation is due in March.

ROMULUS DIGEST

Wayne Road widening set

Romulus City council members approved the local financial participation in a widening of Wayne Road to four lanes from Bride to Wick at their meeting March 14.

Council members approved the allocation of $120,000 as the local share of the $360,000 project. Additional funding will be provided by the county.

The four miles of roadway should be resurfaced and widened during the 1988 construction year, according to Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally. County officials had initially indicated an interest in widening the road from Goddard to the I-94 ramp, however, McAnally said the city decided to postpone the idea because of the safety of students in the Goddard Road area.

Schools stage special meeting

Members of the Romulus School Board met in a special meeting Monday to award tax anticipation notes for cash flow needs.

The TANs are issued annually, according to Dr. William Bedell, superintendent of schools. The notes are a form of borrowing from a bank, Bedell said.

School officials plan to borrow $3.5 million, using the TANs. The monies will be repaid with tax-levy funding the school district will receive this fall.

Clarification

A chart on the front page of the Romulus Roman last week contained outdated tax information for two of the taxing districts listed. The chart listed the sanitation and sewage levy in the city as 2.2 and the community college levy as .95. In fact, the tax levy in 1987 for the sewers and sanitation was 2.0 and .88 for the community college. In all, the total tax levy for 1987 for all taxing districts within the city of Romulus was 69.84.

will open in early 1989; and the 63-room Super 8 Motel, Inc., on Middlebelt, which will open within three months.

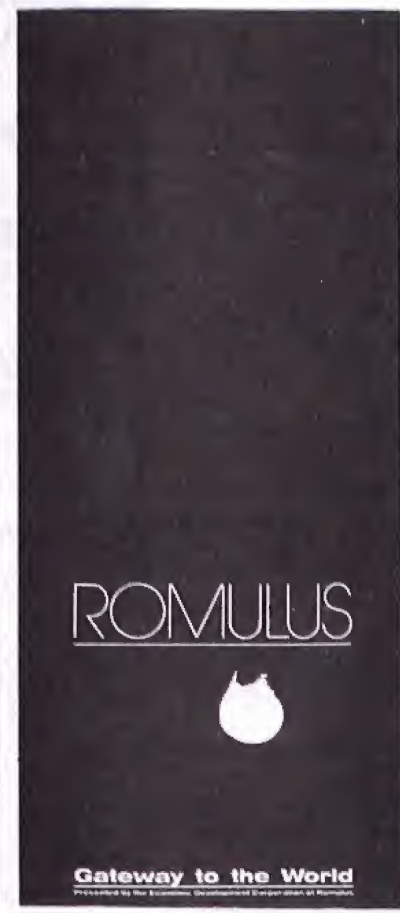

In addition, site plan approvals were recently granted for the 145-room Pickett Suite Inn, on Wickham Road, and the 250-room Marriott Hotel, "Compact Two," on Flynn Drive.

BUT ALL DEVELOPMENT is not industrial or hotel-related, Oakes admitted. In the residential area, 12, new, 14-000-square-foot homes have been constructed in the Meadows subdivision, located south of Eureka, east of Middlebelt. The homes - which are "selling as fast as they can be put up," according to Oakes - will be listed at between $60,000 and $70,000.

In addition, a proposed $1 billion World Metro/Center complex, to be located north of I-94, between Merriman and Henry Ruff, would combine hotel, commercial and residential developments, Oakes explained. The project, planned by noted Florida developer E. Lloyd Ecclestone Jr. and estimated to create 40,000 new jobs, has been stalled by state Department of Transportation officials. Before the project can begin, city officials say, federal and state highway officials must consent to constructing a $9 million interchange and overpass at I-94 and Vining Road.

Although approval is expected, the decision to construct the improvements could take another month, Oakes said.

Marketing the city will spur more growth

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

Marketing is as important to the city of Romulus as it is to auto manufacturers and grocery store owners, according to city officials, who are launching a new, aggressive campaign to attract new business and industry to the area.

At the forefront of this new campaign is a $14,000 brochure of the city, recently produced by members of the Economic Development Corp. of Romulus. The EDC is a quasi-public business created by the city council in the early 1970s to assist in economic expansion, according to Dennis Oakes, Romulus economic development director and one of the nine EDC members.

The EDC is governed by a board of directors, who are paid for their monthly meeting attendance. The corporation has the power to own property in the city, generate money through issuing bonds, issue loan programs for industry, receive gifts and act, in many ways, as a private corporation, Oakes said.

All funding to the 1987 $58,000 EDC budget was generated from interest the corporation received from issuing bonds. No public monies are used to operate the group, Oakes explained.

The brochure project was one and one-half years in the making, Oakes said, and was the major purpose of the EDC during that period. Included in the brochures are a map of the city, demographic information, guide to business assistance services and list of transportation, business and industrial highlights.

"We are going to use this as a direct-mail piece, with cover letter, to respond to inquiries, give it to people who walk in the door - principally, it will be given to anyone who is a good solid lead."

The importance of the EDC was diminished in 1986, after federal passage of the tax reform act, according to Oakes. EDCs before this time could issue bonds for both commercial and industrial projects at an interest rate of generally about 1 point below the prime lending rate. The money investors gained from buying EDC bonds - and all other municipal bonds - is exempt from taxes.

However, the tax reform act limited the bond issuance to industrial projects only.

"The EDC is not really active anymore. The change in the tax laws has really reduced the ability to sell bonds," Oakes said. "In addition, the difference between an EDC bond and the market rate (prime lending interest rate) is not that great right now because of the strong economy."

Not wanting to become nonexistent, Oakes said, EDC members decided to join forces in a promotional effort of the city. The brochure produced has already attracted rave reviews and should be a boost to the marketing strategies of the city, according to Oakes.

"I've meet with a couple of people who were really impressed with (the brochure)," Oakes said. "We plan to take them to trade shows and to possible developers."

"If we market our city, hopefully, we can get some of the expansions and relocations in the area," Oakes continued.

"The airport, the freeways - they market themselves. But we cannot sit back and let (development) happen."

approved by the county Board of Commissioners. The expansion plans were put on hold, Conway said, when Republic, then the largest of the Metro airline firms, merged with Northwest Orient, altering the game plan for the expansion.

Dennis Oakes, Romulus director of economic development, also could see no harm to the city because of new airport plans in Macomb County and expansion of the Detroit City Airport. However, Oakes said, expansion plans at Metro Airport will directly affect the city.

Initial plans of creating a new runway at the airport to cut across Wayne Road have been revealed to city officials, Oakes said. If the plan were to become finalized, city officials would consider extending Wayne straight to Wahrman Road and eliminating the curve in the road, beginning at Eureka.

However, Oakes continued, the proposals are all preliminary, and no plans have yet been made final.

has been thousands of new jobs created in the city in the last few years. We have 19,000 jobs in the city without any real, sizeable employer," Oakes said. "The mayor always points out that we have the lowest tax rate for a city of this size in the state."

Romulus residents, in 1987, were levied a total of 11.2 mills for city operations and sewer maintenance. That figure is less than the 20.9 mills levied to Wayne residents, 16.6 mills for Belleville residents, 17.06 mills for Westland residents and 22.72 mills for Inkster residents. Next year, city officials have said they will decrease the city millage levy .5 mills because of new developments.

The tax reduction is possible, Oakes said, because business and industry provide two-thirds of the revenue used to operate the city. With increases in the number of businesses and industrial firms, the tax burden on residents is lightened.

However, Romulus residents are also on the high end of the scale for school district tax levies. Taxpayers in the Romulus school district are levied 49.15 mills, while those in Wayne-Westland are levied 48 mills, 37.2 mills in Livonia, 43 mills in Van Buren schools and 42.65 mills for Inkster schools.

AND JUST HOW much more development is possible? Much more, according to Oakes, who said there is currently more than 11,000 vacant acres of land in the city, which has a total acreage of 23,000. Romulus residents have the airport to thank for that, he explained.

"I don't think we will ever develop all of the land," Oakes said. "Of course, I don't mean ever - but not in the next few years."

Survey may determine memorial site

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

Families of the victims of Northwest Flight 255 are being asked to complete a survey in an attempt to determine the site of a proposed memorial to those who died in the crash.

Flight 255 crashed at Detroit Metropolitan Airport last August just after takeoff, killing 154 passengers and two people on the ground. The only survivor of the wreckage was 4-year-old Cecilia Cichan, of Tempe, Ariz.

Norman Hagler, chairman of the Living Memorial Committee, said families of the victims are being surveyed by the committee on their feelings about the memorial and its location. He said the surveys should indicate the general feeling of where the memorial should be placed.

"The idea is starting to progress. There are a lot of support groups around that include the victims' families," Hagler said. "The survey should be very positive. We are asking them what they want and will provide for them what they want."

Hagler said the committee has met about two times and he added about 70 to 80 people from the families were present at the meetings.

He said about five groups have been supporting the families and about seven ideas for the memorial have been requested. One idea included a memorial park at the crash site.

Romulus City Councilman William Wadsworth, in a letter to Mayor Beverly McAnally, said the victims of the Northwest commuter Flight 2268, which crashed at Metro in-bound from Cleveland, Ohio, and killed nine passengers on board last March, should also be remembered in some way.

Wadsworth, who was unavailable for comment, said in the letter many citizens have approached him regarding Flight 2268. He added the general feeling of the people was that if any kind of memorial is established for victims of Flight 255, then the victims of Flight 2268 should be remembered.

Enjoying Good Health

Dr. Sohal is a cardiologist on the Oakwood Hospital Medical Staff, and maintains a private practice in Allen Park.

RISK FACTORS, SYMPTOMS
Some of the risk factors include age, smoking, high blood pressure, diabetes, high cholesterol, family history, and obesity.
Heart attack symptoms include:
• Pressure or pain in the chest that lasts longer than two minutes;
• Pressure or pain that spreads to arms, back, shoulders, or neck; and
• Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea, or shortness of breath.
Not all of these symptoms may be present, and they may come and go and return again.
The most important thing to remember is to take them seriously even though it may be a false alarm.
Don't be afraid to risk the embarrassment of a negative finding, it may save your life.

KNOW THE WARNING SIGNS, SYMPTOMS OF HEART ATTACK
By Chaman Sohal, M.D.
"This can't be happening to me!"
"I can't be having a heart attack, I'm too young!"
It's only natural to become frightened and deny the warning signs of a heart attack. And you may not be having one at all. However, if you know what the symptoms are, and get help immediately, you may have your fears put to rest. Or, if you are having a heart attack, you will get immediate medical attention.

FEAR PLAYS MAJOR ROLE
Most heart attacks are not fatal. With early treatment the chances of surviving one are even greater. Lack of knowledge and fear play a major role in making heart attacks the number one cause of death.
Since 1.5 million Americans suffer a heart attack each year, the first step is to take a health inventory of yourself and make the necessary changes in your lifestyle so that you reduce your chances of becoming part of this statistic.
If people reduce controllable risk factors and know the warning signs, thousands of lives could be saved annually.

Faust endorses Gephart

State Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) today strongly encouraged voters in Western Wayne County to participate in the Democratic Presidential Preference caucuses to be held this Saturday, March 26, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Faust cautioned voters that caucus voting sites are not identical to normal voting locations.

Further, Faust announced his support for presidential democratic candidate Dick Gephart. Faust said, "I endorse Dick Gephart based upon his excellent reputation both in his district and in the U.S. Congress. Presently there are over 80 members of Congress supporting his campaign."

Faust continued, "Also contributing to my decision have been his stance on critical issues facing our nation. Dick Gephart alone among the candidates has offered specific solutions to our nation's economic, trade and agricultural problems. Perhaps most importantly, I am impressed with Dick Gephart's sense of national vision and compassion for people."

Those who are unsure about the location of their caucus voting site may contact the Michigan Gephart for President headquarters at (313) 557-7819 or 557-7744.

Taking care of business

Nobody ever said it was going to be easy. And yet, for some, success seems to be without apparent effort while others stand by wondering exactly what it is that is lacking in their efforts.

That might aptly describe the condition of our local areas as retail business continues to flock to the city of Westland and Canton Township while Wayne, Belleville, Inkster and Romulus wonder at the lack of local retail development in their communities.

The development in Westland and Canton, while appearing to be effortless and a gift of the fates, is the result of excellent planning and extreme effort. But more than that, it is the result of a sincere and genuine commitment at every level of municipal government to make this development happen and to push for the success of these areas.

While Romulus will see continued economic growth in the construction of industrial parks and airport-related business, there is a marked lack of they type of booming retail establishments which typify Westland and Canton.

In Belleville, while city government claims to be committed to the revitalization of the downtown area, there is a lack of the growth which should be a part of the city. Belleville, particularly, is a prime candidate for smaller retail specialty shops with a home town, yet cosmopolitan flavor. Certainly the demographics in the area are not keeping new business away, and yet, only Westland and Canton seem to be able to provide the atmosphere these retailers are seeking.

Belleville officials, too, might be reminded of the need to support those local businesses who have remained loyal to the town and despite less than desirable conditions, continued to do business at a local level.

Inkster officials have for years been making every effort to secure financing and a developer for a new shopping center. With the Michigan Avenue traffic which divides the city and the high visibility of the area, retail development should not be the problem it seems to be. And yet, it would appear, that the demographics and the unpleasant history of the city drive new retail business away.

In Wayne, a group of local citizens has decided to take action. A committee, led by council member Donna McEachern who is also secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, has been formed and is determined to do something to change the climate which has existed in Wayne for so many years. The residents there, and the business owners, are determined to revitalize the town and make the climate for business more desirable. And yet, they still don't seem to realize what it will take.

The efforts in Wayne will be helped by Assistant City Manager John Zech, long a supporter of new business, but quite frankly, the committee and Zech simply are not enough.

The secret to successfully luring new retail development is so simple, it seems almost too obvious to repeat. And yet, as apparent from the lack of success in the area, many have overlooked it.

Westland and Canton officials didn't. They understood the attitude necessary for a good business and retail climate and took that posture. While it may seem that new business flocks to these areas nearly unheeded, that is not the case. These municipalities have had leadership which exerted a concentrated effort into luring development and retailers into the area and the secret is simple. They made it easy and they made them welcome.

If a developer needs information in Westland, he goes into one building. Everything he needs is there, including someone to take him step-by-step through the process of opening his doors. It's all under one roof and questions about zoning, city codes, necessary permits and fees can all be answered by competent, friendly people who act as though they are glad to help. In fact, both Canton and Westland employ people to actually solicit and invite new business to locate in their town.

It is very simple. New business goes where it is welcome. If retail outlets went where there was a need, all our communities would be booming, because a drive through any of our towns will demonstrate that new business would certainly be welcomed by the residents who would support it with their dollars.

The business of local government should be local business. We need a genuine commitment from our local city governments to help promote local retail development.

Simply put, it is the responsibility of our local elected officials to take care of business today, or we may not have a future.

THE PRINCESS AND THE FROG

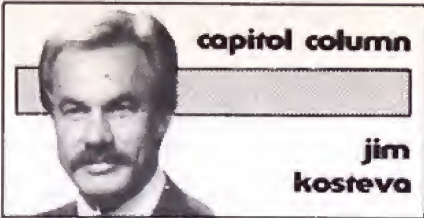

State to aid displaced workers

Facing layoff from a job is difficult for almost anyone. This prospect, currently facing many in the auto industry and related businesses, needn't be totally devastating. State government has been active not only in promoting job growth and diversification, but also in encouraging retraining and job placement for displaced workers.

Thanks to months of hard work by the Michigan congressional delegation, labor and industry officials and many in state government, Michigan was recently awarded a special $2 million federal grant to provide retraining and job placement assistance for workers being laid off as a result of auto plant closings.

The grant will be combined with $18 million of labor and business funds and $1 million of state funds to make retraining and placement services available to nearly 16,000 of the estimated 22,500 workers being laid off in Michigan.

Laid-off workers will be able to have their skills assessed, obtain retraining if needed and receive help in locating a new job. The state is also spending more than $1 million this year for retraining and placement efforts to respond to auto-related industry layoffs.

We've learned during the last five years that the key to Michigan's long-term economic health is diversified growth within non-automotive segments of the economy. Four broad segments of Michigan's economy have demonstrated growth the past few years and present the greatest potential for further expansion. These are:

- New firms that are turning new technologies into businesses such as robotics, cad/cam and microbiology. Michigan is investing in the state's research universities and in new firms through programs such as Michigan's Centers of Research Excellence, Research Excellence Fund, state Venture Capital Fund and the Michigan Strategic Fund;

- Small and medium-size businesses and related service firms that are being given new information on how to be competitive and to help train their workers through the Michigan Modernization Service;
 - Natural resource-based industries, such as agribusiness, forest products and tourism, that are receiving a wide range of marketing and other assistance to make agriculture and tourism $20 billion a year industries by the 1990s; and
 - New entrepreneurial activity that has been expanded to make Michigan one of the leading states in the amount of new business start-ups, with nearly 70,000 over the past three record years.
- Because diversification has been part of Michigan's economic development strategy for some time, many of the policies and programs needed to support diversified growth are already in place. We must recommit ourselves to winning the economic challenges of the day and redouble our efforts to improve ourselves and our state.

Tony Venturini leads 'All Area'

Tony Venturini

All-Stater is one of 14 honored

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Led by this area's first state champ in over a decade, the 1987-88 Associated Newspapers' High School All-Area Team is one of the best in recent years. Tony Venturini, a 98-pound senior sensation from Romulus High who won a coveted state title, heads the outstanding young wrestlers picked by the ANP sports staff for the 1988 elite club.

Venturini is the first from the area to finish on top of the hill at state competition since Brad Smith, a former Romulus High and AAU champ accomplished the feat back in the early 1970's.

"Tony is just one heck of a competitor," said Romulus Coach Wayne Schimming who is being honored as the ANP choice for "Coach of the Year." "A talent like Tony comes along once in a lifetime and believe me I proud just being his coach."

Venturini is one of 14 local high school wrestlers who have been selected for post-season accolades. It is the first time in recent memory that underclassmen have dominated the team. Of the 14, four are sophomores while two are juniors.

Joining Venturini on the 1988 elite team are: David Gehringer (Romulus-105); Tim Kosikowski (Romulus - 112), Bruce Boyd (Romulus 119), Dennis Corder (Romulus - 126), Bob Glasgow (New Boston Huron - 126), Rick Champagne (Romulus - 132), Mike Braswell (Belleville - 138), Tim Trombly (New Boston Huron - 145), Mike Tavtigian (New Boston Huron - 155), Lenny Ziegler (New Boston Huron - 167), Edward Bedwell (Robichaud - 185), Greg Grizzle (Romulus - 198) and Paul Nowicki (Romulus - Heavyweight).

Romulus, which posted a 3-1 conference and a 9-2 overall record also captured its first South Central Conference title while Belleville, a perennial title-contender in the Wolverine 'A' Conference finished atop of the pack, sharing the crown with Monroe High.

Here is a thumbnail sketch of the members of the 1988 All-Area Wrestling Team:

Venturini, who has set all kinds of records since stepping on to the mats at Romulus, is a sensational young wrestler who never gave up on reaching his goal. Last year after finishing third in the state, Tony vowed he would return and win the state crown. He accomplished his mission.

Moreover, en route to the state championship, the 17-year-old senior amassed an enviable 48-2 won-lost record. He won the South Central Conference title, swept six invitational crowns this year and went on to claim district and state titles. Presently some 10 "blue chip" colleges and universi-

Honorable Mention

Schimming is 'Coach of Year'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

When Wayne Schimming took over the high school wrestling program at Romulus in 1977 he set his sights on two goals - producing a state champ and putting together a lineup that would capture the Class A state title.

This year Schimming saw one of those dreams come true when 98-pounder Tony Venturini won the state crown.

"And, I believe with the young talent we have coming back next year we may be able to go all the way next year," Schimming pointed out. "We have the potential in these kids."

Schimming's 1987-88 lineup was his best, he says.

Competing officially in their new league, the South Central Conference, Romulus posted a 3-1 league record en route to the conference title. Last year, as an independent, the Eagles also dominated the tough SCC League which in-

Swim stars to shine

The elite high school wrestling team depicted on this page may be the first but not the last "All-Area" team to be unveiled by The Associated Newspapers this year.

During subsequent weeks, fans can look forward to the top swimmers, basketball, volleyball and gymnastics stars who will be honored here along with Coaches of the Year from each sport.

ties, including the University of Michigan, Michigan State and Eastern Michigan would like Venturini's name on a letter of intent.

"He is definitely the best wrestler I have coached in the 14 years I have been here at Romulus," said Coach Wayne Schimming.

Gehringer is one of the four sophomores named to this year's team. He has outstanding credentials. A 28-17 overall record that included a silver medal at the league championships, David is only a first-year wrestler who has stored a lot of talent within him, according to his coach.

"David just got stronger as the season progressed," Schimming said. "He has tremendous potential and if he continues to train with the intensity he has shown in the past, David could be unbeatable a year from now."

Kosikowski is another wrestler fans should keep their eyes pinned on. The 15-year-old Romulus soph, who checks in at 112-pounds, compiled a 41-9 overall record after emerging with the conference title, four firsts at invitational tournaments and a second place at district's. He survived the regional to become one of a handful of sophomores who made the trip to the state finals.

Boyd also can claim a host of accomplishments. The Romulus soph picked up bronze medals at both the district and regional tournaments after capturing his first league title. With state wrestling experience behind him, Boyd will form the nucleus of a Romulus team that could possibly win the state crown a year from now.

"He's a dedicated wrestler," said Schimming, the kind of young athlete you know who will go far if he sticks to it."

Corder, a senior, brought the curtains down on a stellar wrestling career at Romulus. He had a 39-13 won-lost record as a senior which included the SCC title at 126. He also earned several major tournament medals and finished third at both the district and regional before going on to compete at state.

Champagne is a versatile athlete who also earned an All-Area berth in football. A junior who wears a conference championship medal at 132, Rick didn't survive the regional tournament after making it through the district. He has two first place invitational medals.

"He's a personable young man who is tough as soon as he steps on the mats," Schimming noted. "We're looking forward to his return next year."

Grizzle made his debut as a 198-pound an auspicious one. An aggressive grappler who was a key performer at a difficult weight class, Grizzle earned the respect of his opponents by never giving up. "His enthusiasm rubbed off on to others," said Schimming. "He was a team leader, someone who others rally around."

Nowicki, who rounds out the Romulus delegation to All-Area, brings a 45-5 record to the mythical team. A junior who captured the conference title, Paul was first at district; second at regional and went on to finish fourth at the state finals. One year from now he wants to be the top gun.

"I don't think you'll find a better heavyweight or a smarter one at that in the state a year from now," Schimming said. "Watch out for him in 1989."

Braswell tied the Belleville High point scoring record for a sophomore when he piled up 131 points this season. With an impressive 34-12-1 won-lost-tied, Braswell managed to win the Wolverine 'A' Conference title at 138. He finished second

Robichaud director blasts cage officials

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The controversial Bishop Borgess - Robichaud basketball game remains controversial even after the end of the regular high school season.

Leit Jones, Robichaud High athletic director, filed a protest last week over the officiating with the executive director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association. Borgess defeated Robichaud by three points, in the semifinal round of the Class B district play-offs staged at the Redford Township-based high school.

Jones said in his statement to the MHSAA that he is asking "for either the resignations or dismissals of the officials due to their blatantly and/or incompetent performance while officiating the District Boys' Basketball Tournament."

Jones cited several one-sided calls that opened the door to the Bishop Borgess victory:

at the district, then went on to finish third at regionals. Although he was eliminated in the state finals, Mike left his mark by making the state runner up sweat for his victory before losing by a point.

Braswell placed first at the Ypsilanti and the Canton Invitational.

"He's an outstanding wrestler," said Belleville Coach Gerald Malacek. "And he's only the third soph in our school's history to qualify for state."

Glasgow, one of four wrestlers drafted from New Boston Huron Coach Kevin Roush's team, ended his prep mat career with a 43-6 overall record and a silver medal at the Huron Conference championships. The 126-pound senior won both the district and the regional championships before losing in the second round of the state finals.

"Bob definitely was one of my top wrestlers," Roush said. "And he came on strong at the end of the season."

Glasgow also placed first at Westland John Glenn, Carlson while he was runner up at the Garden City and Southgate invitational.

Trombly checks in at 145-pounds and this senior has been wrestling since his sophomore year. As a senior he had 30-10 overall record, which included first place finishes at the Southgate and Carlson tournaments. He was third at league as well as district.

After launching a notable career as a sophomore, Trombly didn't wrestle as a junior and decided to make a comeback in his senior year. "He's good and you can only speculate what he would have accomplished if he wrestled as a junior," said Roush.

Tavtigan, who like Zeigler made the All-Area football team last year, had to wrestle over injuries this year. He wound up with a sterling 42-4 record which netted him a long list of victories including the Southgate, Carlson, and Westland John Glenn invitational. Mike was runner up at the district and the regional.

"He definitely has potential to wrestle in college. He is not only a hard worker and devoted athlete, Mike has the skills to get the job done," Roush said.

Zeigler finished his prep wrestling career with a 33-9 record. He earned four varsity stripes in the sport and is one of the reasons why the Chiefs managed to do better than expected this season.

He finished second at the district championships and also boasts second place medals for his performances at the Glenn and Southgate tournaments. He won the Carlson Invitational.

Huron wrapped up a 13-7 overall record and won the Class B district title at River-view. Roush was satisfied - and surprised - at his team's overall performance.

"I must admit we did better than I thought we would do," Roush said. "And I feel that we have enough of these kids back next year to make a run for it again."

Bedwell, Robichaud's lone representative to the All-Area team, is one of the finest 185-pounders produced by the Bulldogs in recent years. He was an unanimous selection to the all-Suburban Athletic Conference several prestigious invitations including the Monroe, Lincoln Park and their own tournaments.

Schimming's accomplishments earned for him yet another honor: The Associated Newspapers' "Coach of the Year" award.

"This definitely has been my finest team," Schimming said. "And the difference has been that these kids have been a more 'together team' than those I have coached in the past."

"It isn't very often that a coach can get and put together the talent that we had on this year's club," Schimming continued, "but believe me, we were really fortunate to have such a good-looking, hard-working, and talented team as this one."

A Willston, Ohio native, Schimming also was a blue chip wrestler in his collegiate years at Adrian College where he earned all-conference recognition as a 155-pounder.

The 43-year-old Schimming and his wife, Donna, have two children: Ryan, 14, and

Robichaud is city swim champion

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Robichaud ended a successful swimming season by winning the 1988 Dearborn Heights Swimming & Diving city championship.

Coach Jim Hadley and the Bulldogs outdistanced their nearest city rival by more than 50 points and picked up five first places including the medley relay.

"It was an excellent way to end the year," Hadley noted.

"These kids have contributed much to a season that helped turn our program around."

Robichaud amassed a 7-1 Suburban Athletic Conference record and brought the curtains down on a 13-2 won-lost overall year. They shared the SAC title with Willow Run, the only conference team to mar the Bulldogs' record during the 1987-88 campaign.

Jason Francis and Robbie Patrick accounted for two victories each for the Bulldogs.

Francis turned in a 2:05.4 in winning the 200-yard freestyle event. He also posted a 5:53.0 in claiming a gold for the 500-yard freestyle.

Patrick was the one to catch in the 100-yard backstroke as he was clocked in the winning time of 1:04.3. He also won the individual medley event.

Robichaud also had a city champion in Robert Stewart who covered the 100-yard breaststroke in the winning time of 1:09.5.

Hadley also put together the best medley relay team at the invitational. The Bulldog lineup included Patrick, Stewart, Ken Wood and Mike Klix who finished in 1:54.5.

Robichaud garnered 116 points as compared to runner up, Crestwood's 63. The third team in the field, Dearborn Heights Annapolis, had 37.

The city meet, cancelled four years ago after Robichaud had dominated the competition, was reinstated this year thanks to Crestwood.

"It is a good meet and gives all of our kids an opportunity to test their strengths against their peers in the city," noted Hadley.

Hadley labeled the overall season as "tremendous".

"For the past three years we have been struggling," he added. "But these kids have helped turn things around. And this new blood will be back next year."

ers) as opposed to nine fouls on Bishop Borgess;

- Not once was the Borgess team whistled for hanging onto the rim after a slam-dunk, even though the infraction was quite obvious to all who witnessed the game;
- On numerous occasions, the Borgess team was allowed to commit obvious fouls; the kind where spectators in the uppermost section of the stands heard the telltale "slap" of flesh upon flesh;
- The Borgess team was allowed to block two of Robichaud's shots by illegal goal-tending.
- The Borgess center was never called for charging, even though on one occasion, he literally bowled over three Robichaud players on his way to the basket. As a matter of fact, the Borgess center who played a spirited, aggressive game and who demonstrated undeniable talent, finished the game with ZERO fouls.
- On two occasions, Robichaud players (while in the act of shooting) were knocked to the ground. Both officials looked away and called nothing.

Jones said that in his opinion the poor officiating cost Robichaud the ball game. The Robichaud athletic director pointed out his qualifications to make the criticism of the officials. He said that he has been both a college and professional athlete during his career and that he has served as a high school coach for approximately 27 years.

"I have never allowed myself to be the typical 'cry baby', moaning and groaning about the quality of officiating," Jones said. "I have always felt compassion and deep respect for game officials, because they serve in a high profile, tough, thankless capacity."

The results of this game are irreversible. We understand this.

— Leit Jones

Jones stressed that he realizes the Borgess and Robichaud basketball game is history and the results "have been recorded and are absolutely irrevocable."

"The calls that were made or were not made were judgmental and there is nothing that you, or anyone else, can do to overturn them. Therefore, there is only one just and honorable way to resolve this issue so that this issue henceforth, no other team in the state will have to endure the shameful misfortune suffered by Robichaud High School.

"You must call for and accept the resignations of the two officials involved. They must stand for and be held accountable for their transgressions," Jones stated.

"We had a spectacular day," said Canton coach John Cunningham, following the ninth place finish of the Chiefs at the state meet Saturday at Canton High School.

"I thought our scores could have been higher because we hit everything. But I can't complain, I am very proud of my team."

The Chiefs finished the day with 129 points. North Farmington, which defeated Canton in the conference meet, took 11th place.

"That made it a little nicer," said Cunningham. "I just can't say enough about the performances, they were all exceptional."

Contests: Readers encouraged to test their luck

Don't worry about the Lotto, the many "sweepstakes" tickets in the mailbox or the neighborhood bingo game. The Associated Newspapers has a list of contests that is better than them all.

From a contest to pick the winner of the Oscars to one that will help determine which pothole is the "best" in the area, the ANP contests are designed to attract reader input and support in several special features.

For most contests, readers are asked to send information to the newspaper offices. Entries can be on a scrap piece of paper, typed, printed or written in blood. We only ask that the provisions of the contest rules be followed.

A list of the contests is included below:

The Oscars

Area residents have an opportunity to win dinner for two and tickets to a movie for correctly naming the Academy Award winners in six top categories.

Film fans are invited to submit their selections for the best picture and best actor, actress, supporting actor and supporting actress. The prize will be awarded to the individual who correctly identifies all six, or, in case of a tie, the correct entry with the earliest postmark.

Entrants should select one in each of the following categories:

• BEST PICTURE: Broadcast News, Fatal Attraction, Hope and Glory, The Last Emperor or Moonstruck.

• BEST ACTOR: Michael Douglas, Robin Williams, Jack Nicholson, Marcello Mastroianni or William Hurt.

• BEST ACTRESS: Cher, Glenn Close, Holly Hunter, Sally Kirkland or Meryl Streep.

• BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR: Albert Brooks, Sean Connery, Morgan Freeman, Vincent Gardenia or Denzel Washington.

• BEST SUPPORTING AC-

TRESS: Norma Aleandro, Anne Archer, Olympia Dukakis, Anne Ramsey or Ann Southern.

• BEST SONG: Cry Freedom, The Time of My Life, Nothing's Going to Stop Us Now, Shakedown and Storybook Love.

The names selected in the above categories should be sent to Movie Contest, Associated Newspapers, P.O. Box 578, Wayne, Mich. 48184, or brought to either the Wayne or Belleville office. The name, address and phone number of the person submitting the entry also should be included.

The prize will be awarded following the Academy Awards presentations on April 11. Entries must be received before 5 p.m. April 8.

The jelly beans

Guess how many jelly beans we have in our "magical" jar.

In the ANP main office, located at 35540 Michigan Ave., west of Wayne Road, across from Pizza Hut, Wayne, a jelly bean jar sits atop our reception counter. The jar is filled with the sweet, candy beans – but how filled.

Entry forms are located on the counter for office visitors to submit their guesses. The person guessing the exact number of jelly beans will receive a $35 gift certificate for dinner for two at Chuck Muer's, of Wayne.

If more than one person guesses the exact number, a winner will be selected at random.

Contest ends at 7 p.m. April 1.

Call our office at 729-4000 for more detailed directions. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday; 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday; 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday; and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

The potholes

Although area public works employees have been hard at work keeping the roads in good condition this winter, the combination of freezing temperatures and thaws plus snow, ice and salt on the roadways have produced the scourge of spring – potholes.

As drivers navigate the area streets and highways this spring, they should note the "best of the worst" potholes in the area. The pothole must be on a paved road or street in Wayne, Westland, Romulus, Inkster, Belleville or Canton, Sumpter or Van Buren townships. Prizes will be awarded to the first individuals to nominate each of the three worst potholes in the area.

Nominations may be sent by letter or postcard to: Pothole contest, Associated Newspapers, P.O. Box 578, Wayne, Mich. 48184. The contest closes April 1, and winners will be announced in the April 6 edition of the newspaper.

The winner will receive a front-end alignment from an auto service center in the area. Second- and third-place prizes will also be given.

Furry friend

You're never too young for the thrill of the Easter bunny as Amanda Dye, 10 months old, learned as she got her first chance to visit with the big rabbit when he hopped into Westland Mall last weekend. While Amanda, at left, seemed somewhat unsure of the holiday rabbit, Tommy Riney, 5, above, welcomed the opportunity to visit with the rabbit and to explain exactly what type of candy he'd like to find in his basket this year. Obviously, the bunny paid rapt attention. ANP photos by Paula Parkinson.

China Star shines second time around

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

The second review of a restaurant is always the most critical. My standards are higher, my expectations greater and my demand for excellent service almost unreasonable.

Thus, when I walked away from the China Star Palace, in Westland, again more content than a Chinese native participating in the Chinese new year celebrations, I was convinced that this was nothing but a five-star restaurant.

I had reviewed the China Star Palace and the fine food available there last summer. But, again, my assignment was to put the restaurant cooks and staff to the test – this time ordering entrees I had never heard of or contemplated trying.

My now-expert food critic – and ever-supportive fiancée, Debbie – and I walked in the China Star during the peak dinner hour on a Saturday. The restaurant was packed, but – thanks to three spacious dining rooms, all appropriately decorated in a Chinese theme – we were quickly seated by restaurant co-owner Jane Wong.

Our waitress, Paula Chao, was also quick to take our drink orders. I opted for the mai tai ($3.15), and Debbie chose the pina colada ($3.50). Both were superb, and the decorative glass ornaments made our Chinese dining experience even more authentic.

Next came the dinner order. My orders for this restaurant review were to taste something I never had before. Chicken warr barr ($8.50) seemed to fit that description perfectly. Let's face it, I didn't even know warr barrs existed.

To complement my main dish, I ordered won ton soup and an egg roll.

Debbie chose the almond chicken ($6.95), egg drop soup and an egg roll.

Chao informed us that the restaurant is now offering a new soup variety – homemade chicken noodle. Maybe that is for those who still seek a bit of American culture in their meals. I still prefer won ton.

Anyway, as was the case before, the soup and egg rolls were outstanding – hot, fresh and ever-so flavorful.

You're probably wondering at this point how I handled the warr barr. Although I'm still not sure I know how to pronounce it correctly, I loved it. The chicken warr barr was thin strips of boneless breast of chicken, in a sauce combined with bamboo shoots, pea pods, mushrooms, water chestnuts and rice cakes and served with white rice.

I must admit it. The chicken warr barr – despite the peculiarity in name – is now one of my favorite dishes at the China Star.

As for Debbie, she also had rave reviews for the almond chicken and has listed it as her favorite meal at the restaurant, as well.

Now for dessert. Chao informed us that we had our choice of ice cream, sherbet or fortune cookies and almond

Omni Star

PERFORMING ARTS THEATRE

Presents

"AN EVENING WITH"

WAYNE NEWTON

Omni manager Joe Vispi. ANP photo by Ann Grimes

Star-studded remodel

Omni Star Theater is well received by consumers

Popular vocalist Bobby Vinton will open his engagement at the Omni Theatre on March 24. Vinton, the fifth performer in the grand opening series of shows, will appear at 8 p.m. March 24, 25 and 26 and at 3 p.m. on March 26 and 27.

Following Vinton to the Omni Theatre will be Lou Rawls at 8 p.m. April 7, 8 and 9 and at 3 p.m. April 9 and 10. Closing the seven-part series will be the Temptations and a special guest star who has not as yet been named. The Temptations will perform at 8 p.m. April 21, 22 and 23 and at 3 p.m. April 23 and 24.

Opening the newly renovated 1,450-seat theatre in February was top Las Vegas entertainer Wayne Newton who appeared to a sell-out crowd in his six performances. Newton brought his Las Vegas show with laser lights and fog effects to the kick-off event which was hailed as a successful start for the new theatre endeavor.

All of the entertainers who performed in the opening series were - like Newton, Vinton and the Temptations - well-known and highly regarded performers who appeal to the "middle-of-the-road musical tastes" of the suburban western Wayne County audiences.

Among the other top performers who have preceded Vinton on the Omni stage were Patti Page and Jerry Vale in A Very Special Evening, The McGuire Sisters and Jack Jones plus Donald O'Connor and Debbie Reynolds.

The new theatre, according to artistic director and producer Joseph Vispi, is dedicated to bringing top entertainment to the area, and plans to continue to provide "the best in performing arts, the best in live entertainment" at affordable prices to a conveniently located site.

According to Vispi, all of the 1,450 seats in the Omni Theatre have an "intimate, unobstructed view." The theatre features state-of-the-art lights and sound with reserved seating, he added.

Tickets for Vinton are on sale at the theatre box office week days between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. for $22.75. Tickets for Rawls performances are $19.75 and the Temptations tickets price is $21.75.

Theatre-goers may phone the box office at 422-6664 to order tickets with Visa or Mastercard, or purchase tickets from Ticket Master outlets.

The former Mai Kai Theatre is located at Plymouth and Farmington roads, near I-96.

Board members rezone Canton Center Road site for offices

The Canton Township Board of Trustees approved the rezoning of property on Canton Center Road.

Charles and Avis Nine, residents at 355 North Canton Center Road, asked the board to rezone their property from single family residential to general office.

The property is on the west side of Canton Center Road between Cherry Hill and Saltz roads.

The Nines are near retirement, according to Dave

Obedient dogs learn skills early in life

We conduct evaluations of dogs one hour each week. When the owners arrive with their dogs, most of the dogs (usually those older than 6 months old) are wild, noisy and ill-mannered. When they leave, they are wild, noisy and ill-mannered. In between coming and leaving, the dogs are quite well-behaved. Why is this?

Mainly because to conduct the evaluation properly, the dog must be walked and more often than not corrected while being evaluated.

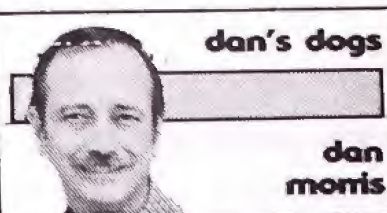

Once a dog has been corrected properly, it learns (almost) immediately what is expected and responds accordingly.

I cannot stress too strongly that correcting properly (according to the dog's size and his mistake) is the most important factor in training a dog. You couldn't or shouldn't correct a Toy Poodle in the same manner as you would a full-grown Rottweiler, for example.

When evaluating a dog, the people who bring the dog in for this purpose, obviously, need help, the dog has become obnoxious and difficult, if not impossible, to control. Generally the dogs problem boils down to lack of knowledge on the owner's part. They don't know how to handle the excessive energy and/or body weight their dog has. They don't appreciate the aggressive behavior the dog may have developed, and they hate the fact it displays absolutely no respect for them. (And they're the ones providing the good home, food, love, everything a dog needs!)

So here we have it - a sticky situation. Even though people need and want our advice and knowledge of dogs, they really don't tolerate very well any firm correcting of their dog. You can compare this to the educating and schooling of children. The teacher is allowed to teach and reprimand verbally but not allowed to physically discipline our children. This may have come about because some teacher years ago punished a student too severely.

The same applies to dog training. It must be done properly, without anger or impatience. It must be fair. The dog and owner must become a team. It is not man over dog, man bellowing at the top of his voice, over-correcting and treating the dog like a dog - instead of as a partner. Just as working with a dog results in his respect for us, we must respect our dog, too.

When I've been given a bully-type dog who smartly uses his body weight and energy against me and who displays aggressiveness against me, that dog simply must be corrected. I am not mis-treating him by expecting him to walk by my side, so there is no reason for him to bare his teeth at me.

The owners want his disposition changed and correcting properly will bring this about.

Most people are happy to see their dog perform and appreciate he may need some correction to attain this. Yet, there are some customers who want the end result - a well-behaved dog - without correcting. That's no different than allowing a child to be abusive to his teacher without being scolded or sent to the principal's office!

No dog should be corrected without good reason. At the same time, total lack of respect for the owner should not be tolerated either.

The sooner you get your dog into training, the less correcting will be necessary.

Children enter kindergarten at age 5. Don't wait for even 5 months of age to train your pup. Start early. Remember, the end result is your responsibility. Don't make it a liability.

cookies. Both of us are cookie fanatics and, of course, opted for a full bowl of the treats.

And in keeping with the China Star style, both types were fresh, flavorful and delicious.

Wong and husband, William, opened the restaurant 15 years ago. Last year, they renovated the interior of the building, with the help of a noted Chinese interior designer.

More than 50 menu items await the visitor to the China Star, and a full bar and banquet facilities are also available. The atmosphere is casual for both couples and families.

I would, again, highly recommend the China Star Palace. That's quite a recommendation for a second-time review, considering my very high standards and expectations. Go there - you'll thank me for it later!

China Star Palace is located at 262-270 Wayne Road, south of Cherry Hill, Westland. Hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday; noon to 10 p.m. Sundays and holidays. Mastercard, VISA, American Express, Diners Club and Carte Blanche are accepted. Call 326-1310.

UPROOTING THE FAMILY TREE

Tracing roots is just about the hottest hobby around, but it requires a little more work than potting a plant.

Genealogy, the study of family descent or lineage, has become the object of fascination for many. Ever since Alex Haley traced his roots and turned his family story into a television mini-series, people have become intrigued by their own pasts.

Tracing the family tree however, will take a little longer than a week or two and the end result might not be as glamorous as Alex Haley's. But discovering from whence ancestors came will provide a certain amount of satisfaction and will result in a family treasure to pass along to future generations.

Martha Strong of Canton Township may have been a genealogist from her birth, but it wasn't until a little more than a year ago that all of those instincts spilled out and began to consume her time.

"I have always saved everything and have always been curious," Strong said. At an early age she was always asking grandparents about their childhood and their families.

Today, Strong is knee-deep, maybe even shoulder-deep, in genealogy. She teaches a class of senior citizens to trace their roots and she has become the historian for a single branch of the Strong family. She is also called upon from time to time to help someone do genealogical research.

The study of her own family has her stuck in Canada in the 1800s. The study of her husband's family has taken her back to William the Conqueror.

Strong said it's not unusual to bump into royalty if you go back far enough.

Getting started in genealogy is not the most difficult part, according to Strong. As a matter of fact, getting started will probably be the easiest part. Strong said the best way to begin is with yourself.

Strong suggests writing down all the facts about yourself, your birthdate, where you were born, your parents, your church, the name of your spouse, information about your children and so on.

Next the genealogist should look to present family members and gather the same type of information as they did for themselves. It's important to talk with brothers, sisters and grandparents, but it is just as important to talk with aunts, uncles and cousins.

"People aren't just names and dates," Strong said. While it is important to document the dates of important incidents in people's lives, Strong said it is just as important to document humorous stories and details from their lives.

Once the genealogist has looked at the present generations, it is time to roll up the sleeves and do some research.

"Genealogy is pure research," Strong said. "And sometimes you get really blurry-eyed."

If your family has been good at keeping records, the battle will be a little easier according to Strong. She said to gather up as many old family letters, diaries, photographs and family Bibles as you can. Many families used to record important dates in the family Bible.

The next step is to track down the places where your ancestors lived. Strong said it is important to remember that nobody coming to this country traveled directly to Michigan, rather they came to Michigan through Canada or the New York and Boston area.

Getting information from the New England area, according to Strong, should not be so difficult.

Genealogy is perfect as time-taking hobby

By BARBARA ALBERT
ANP Staff Writer

Family is what keeps people strong, at least that is what Nancy Rowe of Belleville believes.

"What is wrong today is that there is no sense of family," Rowe said. She believes genealogy is one way to retain some long-forgotten values.

As a member of the Church of Latter Day Saints, Rowe has learned the importance of genealogy. She began tracing her husband's family tree when they first married, 15 years ago. She took over the job of historian for her family when she was 18 years old.

The Mormon Church is well-known for their dedication to family and to the study of family trees. The headquarters of the church in Salt Lake City, Utah, is known worldwide for its genealogy library.

Rowe has traced her husband's past to the earliest settlers of Michigan and was able to earn for her family a Michigan Sesquicentennial Pioneer Certificate.

These were offered last year by the state to those families who could prove Michigan ancestry back 150 years.

Rowe's husband is a direct descendant of Antoine Cuillerier dit Beaubien who was given one of the first farms outside Fort Detroit. Beaubien was friends with Chief Pontiac at the time. Beaubien Street in Detroit is named for him.

Tracing his family line much beyond the early 1700s will be more difficult because the family came from France and traveled through Canada to Michigan. Doing research overseas is much more time-consuming and much more costly.

"When you are working on genealogy you can't help but develop an interest in history," Rowe said.

When studying her husband's lineage, Rowe said she could not help picking up books about Michigan history and thumbing through to find bits relating to the family.

Rowe inherited the title of family histo-

Inkster sorority members sponsor Alex Haley visit

Tickets for a presentation by Alex Haley, sponsored by the Inkster chapter of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, is already sold out.

Haley will speak March 26 in Southfield.

Haley inspired many to trace their family trees when he released the best seller "Roots." The book, released in 1976, was later made into a television mini-series.

Research for "Roots" brought Haley to Inkster and the Holt family. Haley came to Inkster in the late 1960s to learn about the Holt portion of his family tree.

The Holts came to Inkster to work for Henry Ford when he began to offer $5 a day to workers.

Delta Sigma Theta members decided that because Haley had roots in Inkster and because of his intriguing past, he would make an appropriate speaker for the Diamond Jubilee of the sorority.

Sigma Delta Theta is the largest black, Greek-letter sorority in the country. The Inkster chapter is 75 members strong and was first established 29 years ago.

The sorority began planning Haley's visit about one year ago.

Haley, according to sorority member Anita Cobb, will talk about finding something worthy in life and then praising it. He has given presentations on this topic across the country.

Although the members of the Unity of Hands Chorale are silent, their ability to communicate their message is "loud and clear."

The deaf chorale, which was founded 10 years ago by Elta Hambrick, has performed in area churches and schools as well as making appearances on television and performing concerts in several states and Canada.

Hambrick terms the chorale as "a shining example of deaf pride." Its emphasis, she said, is shown on its logo which represents "the oneness of unity, our hands working together, the music which enhances our performances."

The chorale recently was the recipient of a donation from the Women's Council of U.A.W. Local 898 in Rawsonville – a group which plans to make an ongoing commitment to helping the chorale, according to chairperson Winnie James.

Elta Hambrick, founder and director of the chorale, told the Women's Council that her intent in establishing the group was "to promote deaf awareness, build self-esteem for its members, and to develop individual talent." Her goal also is to communicate the message to the masses that "deaf is not dumb."

Performers, accompanied by music, sign the words of the songs – sometimes as a solo and other times with the full chorale, Hambrick said.

"It is something that must be seen and experienced to understand," Hambrick said. "I've tried to explain it to people for the past 10 years, but it really needs to be seen."

Chorale members, who are all hearing impaired, also dance and perform skits and recite poems during their appearances, Hambrick said. A children's group currently is being trained to join the adult performers in future appearances.

The chorale, a non-profit group, is supported by donations, contributions, fund-raisers and grants. Hambrick describes it as a "Christian-oriented chorale which is open to all hearing impaired." Information on scheduling appearances of the group can be obtained by calling Hambrick at 964-3699.

"If you trace your family back to New England it's better because things were very well documented there," Strong said.

Once the towns in which relatives lived and their correct names discovered, then the genealogist should be able to get copies of birth and death certificates through the city clerk.

The difficulty comes, Strong said, when the genealogist must deal with changed names. Towns and people changed names often in the early days of America. Strong said even though the name of a town changed, the documents related to that town remain under the old name. The trouble comes when trying to find where those documents are now kept.

Tracing a family's roots beyond its settlement in North America, becomes particularly difficult.

"It's very complicated to trace families overseas because records are kept differently and you have to deal with a language barrier," Strong said.

It is at this point that many families choose to hire a researcher to help out.

If the genealogist is lucky enough to still have living relatives in that country, the job will be easier, Strong said.

Strong was doing some work on her family tree in England and Italy and she was able to find relatives there to help her.

"When I need help I write to them with a few questions," she said.

Strong said when asking for help from historical groups or libraries in foreign countries it is only polite to send along return postage in the currency of that country.

Now, where does the genealogist look for information?

Libraries will be the greatest resource, Strong said. Old newspaper obituaries and birth notices as well as town histories will be very helpful. Strong said libraries can often arrange loans from other libraries, so the genealogist does not have to go far from home.

The Detroit Public Library has a large research area that is a gold mine for those tracing their personal histories.

Strong said everything is fair game in genealogy. City clerks should be able to provide birth and death certificates, land grant information is available at most research sites. Census reports are sometimes crucial.

Parish records can also be valuable as well as cemetery and funeral home records.

"Sometimes you get so stuck on finding someone," Strong said. "You will eventually end up talking to a relative's grave trying to find the answer."

Strong said genealogy clubs can be a great resource. She said other members of the club might help give the researcher a fresh perspective.

"Everyone left a mark somewhere it's just a matter of finding it," Strong said.

Genealogy can become an expensive hobby. The state of Michigan charges $10 for a birth or death certificate. There are also other copying costs and postage expenses.

Strong also said there may be no other way to get some information, other than hopping on a plane and going to the source.

A large financial investment is not necessary, Strong said. It all depends on how committed the genealogist is to the project.

For instance, if the researcher plans on publishing a book on their family, a much bigger commitment must be made.

Strong suggests that every genealogist do something with his work, whether it is publishing it in book form or copying it and sharing it with family members. She said it is too much work just to let it sit in the form of notes.

For those who just want a taste of genealogy, Strong warns that it is addictive and not easily put aside.

"You get a hot tip on something and you just won't be able to let it go," Strong said.

A message from Oakwood's Cardiology Center

Four weeks ago, Charlie Mitchell thought his playing days were over

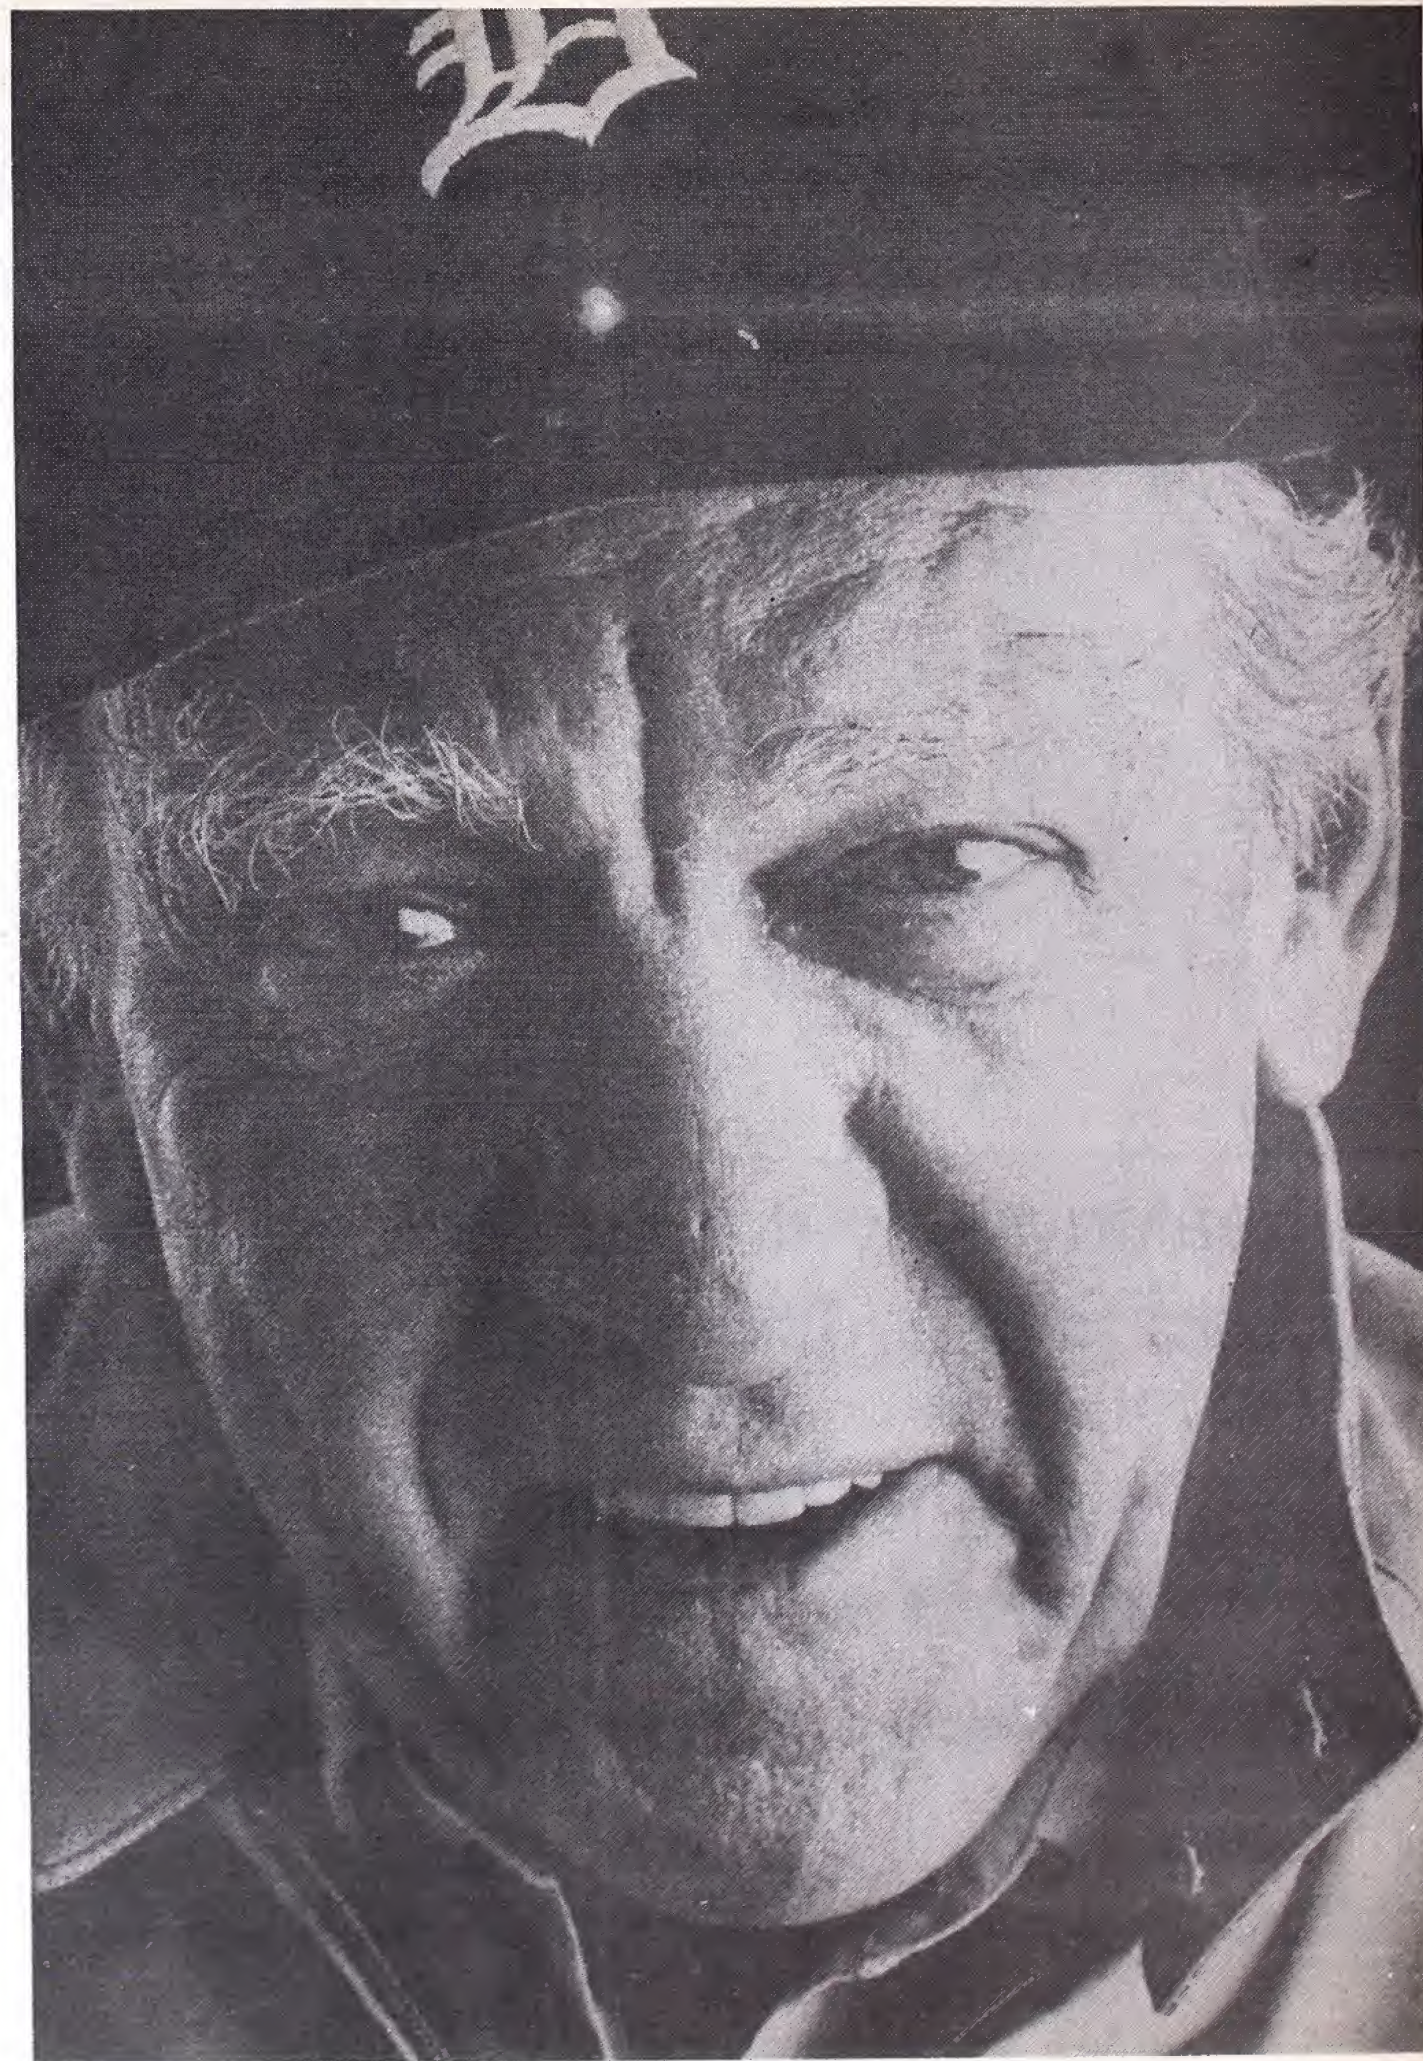

Charlie was lucky. Because when his heart attack occurred, his teammates recognized the symptoms and immediately rushed him to Oakwood Hospital's Emergency Room. Their quick response and Oakwood's fully equipped, 24-hour emergency room are two factors in Charlie's speedy recovery.

Many people wait too long before seeking medical treatment. A delay can cause additional damage to the heart...even death. Oakwood Hospital is just minutes away, and we can do a world of good. For 30 years, Oakwood's cardiologists have been dedicated to the treatment of cardiovascular disease. Our treatment capabilities are state of the art, ranging from drug therapy to the latest surgical techniques. Treatment options include the use of anticoagulant drugs — like streptokinase — that destroy blood clots in the arteries. But, because everyone is different, the treatment is determined on a patient-by-patient basis. And Oakwood's cardiology experts individualize the care each patient receives as well as the treatment program.

Oakwood is also devoted to the patient's follow-up care, with education courses and monitoring that help lead patients back to full, active lives even after a heart attack. So don't delay.

Call 1-800-543-WELL for more information or the name of a physician on the staff of Oakwood Hospital.

Cooking

Now, that's Italian

Pasta may be the Italian culinary claim to fame throughout the world, but when it comes to dessert, the only real Italian concoction worth the title is the cannoli.

There are a multitude of recipes passed off on unsuspecting consumers as "the real thing" but a real Italian cannoli is a thing of beauty, indeed. Cannolis should be light, crispy and delicate shells filled with an ambrosial mixture of whipped ricotta and chocolate, sweetened to perfection. Unfortunately, too many of the industrial-strength creations served in some restaurants have forgotten what the original creation tasted like.

Cannolis are a wonderful tribute to all things Roman and should be made with respect and a certain degree of awe. After all, they were created to please Caesar, and he was not to be disappointed. This is an old and very authentic recipe which will provide wonderful results. Variations can be made which will make them your own, including minced dried fruit or maraschino cherries or...well, you get the idea.

Incidentally, cannoli rollers or forms can be purchased at bulk food stores or regular cookware outlets. They are hollow metal tubes about 8 inches in length and burn the ends of your fingers off when you make these wonderful treats. As information only, these were originally made on wooden rollers--but I sure wouldn't recommend that practice. The wood leaves a VERY distinctive flavor that may add authenticity, but that's about all.

CANNOLI SICILIANI

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
 - 1/2 cup plus 3 Tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
 - 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar
 - 4 Tablespoons unsalted butter, softened
 - 1 cup Marsala
 - 4 cups vegetable oil, for frying
 - 1 egg, beaten with 1 teaspoon water
 - 1 cup heavy cream
 - 2/3 cup plus 1 Tablespoon ricotta
 - 2/3 cup raisins, chopped
 - 3 1/2 ounces unsalted shelled pistachios, toasted and finely chopped
 - 3 1/2 ounces semisweet chocolate, finely chopped
 - Confectioners' sugar for garnish
- In a large bowl, combine the flour, cocoa powder and 6 Tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons of the granulated sugar. Add the butter and Marsala and stir with a wooden spoon until a soft dough forms. Cover and refrigerate for 15 minutes.
- On a well-floured surface, sprinkle one third of the dough with flour and roll out 1/4-inch thick. Stamp out 3 1/2-inch circles and set the scraps aside. Roll the circles into oval shapes and transfer to a cookie sheet and refrigerate until ready to mold. Repeat with the remaining dough, then repeat with all the scraps.
- In a medium saucepan, heat the oil to 350 degrees. Wrap the ovals around cannoli forms, sealing the edges with the beaten egg wash. Fry the cannoli shells in batches for two minutes. Transfer to a rack to cool slightly, then remove the cannoli forms. Wrap and fry the remaining cannoli shells in the same fashion.
- In a medium bowl, beat the cream until stiff. In another bowl, blend the ricotta with the remaining granulated sugar. Stir in the raisins, pistachios and chocolate, then fold in the whipped cream. Cover and refrigerate until ready to use.
- Using a piping bag or a small spoon, fill the cannoli shells with the ricotta cream mixture. Just before serving, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

Hands-on: Culinary arts teachers share skills

By BETH SUNDRLA
ANP Staff Writer

Students learn cooking and cleaning up as well as how to be good employees in the culinary arts course at Plymouth-Salem High School.

In helping to run "The Lunch Box," Salem students get hands-on experience in the food service business.

Instructor Carrie Gary and technical aide Bonnie Kline teach about 36 students in two classes how to prepare meals, stock and clean up a kitchen and how to please employers.

Gary teaches hot food preparation while Kline is in charge of the bakery area.

"We give them the basics in how to be a dependable person. Those are the kinds of character traits you need to keep throughout your working life," Gary said.

The students also learn about the catering business by catering lunches, dinners and even weddings.

In preparing a catered event, students must learn the quality required to please customers, Gary said.

Simplicity, quality and creativity are the keys to good food preparation, Gary said.

"It is sometimes difficult to get their standards high enough," Gary said. "But here they are exposed to working with high quality and quickness on the job."

Gary said she must work with students to balance quality with how long it takes for students to do a good job.

"They are going to be slower when they are learning," Kline said.

Kline has been teaching at Plymouth Salem for eight years while Gary has been there 15 years.

Both have backgrounds in cooking. Gary has a bachelor's degree in home economics and education and a master's degree in vocational education.

Kline was in food service management and also worked freelance in the food service business. She saw an ad in the paper for her present job and decided she would try it. "I've loved it ever since," she said.

To enter the culinary arts program, the students must take a basic course in commercial foods.

In the culinary arts program the students also learn to make food pretty. One boxed lunch was tied with a ribbon and bow and impressed the customers, Kline said.

Preparing a lunch menu each day for faculty and staff members at The Lunch Box is a daily chore for the students.

But the work is broken down into work stations. Students learn to prepare food, serve it, wait on tables, collect payment for the meals, and clean up.

"They are expected to clean up as they go," Gary said.

"The students can organize themselves once they know what they are required to do," she said.

Gary says she teaches students to make their own mayonnaise. "That teaches them patience."

They also learn to make their own pie dough, which is something many people will use in their everyday lives.

"It's amazing how after they spend time here, they can go into a restaurant and say what is good quality food and which is a clean restaurant," Gary said.

Kline teaches the students to make many desserts. Often the students help prepare special orders. "They can do just about anything they set their minds to doing," Kline said.

Most of the students also work outside of school in the food service business in a co-op program, and many make it their career when they leave school.

Both Kline and Gary admit it's hard to go home and cook after working in a kitchen all day. "But we have a reputation to uphold," Gary said with a laugh.

"I sometimes get my refrigerators mixed up," she said. She will think she has a particular item in her home refrigerator and realize it was at school or vice versa.

Kline said she loves to cook and does a lot of entertaining. Good cooking is something both teachers hope will rub off on their students.

Some of the recipes students learn to prepare include:

- #### RANCH STYLE DRESSING
- 1 quart mayonnaise
 - 1 quart buttermilk
 - 2 teaspoons parsley flakes
 - 1 tablespoon salt
 - 2 teaspoons monosodium glutamate
 - 2 teaspoons garlic base
 - 1 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/2 teaspoon onion base
- Mix all ingredients together with whisk. Let stand at least 30 minutes before serving. Makes 1/2 gallon.
- #### FRENCH CROISSANTS
- 1/4 cup plus 1 tablespoon dry yeast
 - 1 1/2 cups water (110-115 degrees)
 - 1 teaspoon sugar
 - 1 cup water (room temperature)
 - 3 ounces dry milk solids
 - 5 ounces sugar
 - 3 ounces butter
 - 5 eggs
 - 3 pounds plus 2 ounces bread flour
 - 2 pounds butter
- Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add 2 teaspoons sugar. Let sit 3 minutes.
- Mix dry milk solids with remaining 2 cups of water.
- In dry mixing bowl of mixer, combine yeast, milk, sugar, salt and eggs. Add the first amount of butter.
- Add flour gradually. When like thick batter change to dough hook. Put dough in refrigerator for 20 minutes.
- Cream the second amount of butter with mixer paddle until butter is the same texture as the dough.

Take dough from the refrigerator and roll dough 1/2 inch thick. Spread with creamed butter. Fold into thirds. Refrigerate for 20 minutes.

Repeat two more times. Refrigerate at least 2 hours.

Cut off dough into sections. Roll 1/8 inch thick. Cut into triangles. Brush with egg wash.

Bake at 325 degrees in convection oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 2 dozen.

BROWNIES

- 6 ounces butter or margarine
- 4 ounces unsweetened chocolate
- 4 eggs
- 1/2 pound plus 6 ounces sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 5 ounces cake flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Melt shortening and chocolate together in double boiler or in microwave. Be sure that all chocolate is melted - if not there will be chunks of bitter chocolate in brownies.

Beat eggs together. Gradually add sugar.

Add melted shortening and chocolate. Add vanilla. Mix well.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add chocolate mixture, mixing only until blended.

Put batter in greased and floured 9-inch by 13-inch pan.

Bake at 325 degrees in convection oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Do not overbake.

rian from her mother when she was 18 years old. Their family has been traced back to the 1520s.

With the title, she inherited a very special heirloom. Rowe's mother passed along a Bible that was carried with a family member during the Civil War. In the Bible there is a lock of hair a four-leaf clover and a bloody fingerprint.

"We think the lock of hair and four-leaf clover were gifts from his girl or wife," Rowe said. "We will probably never know exactly who carried it."

Much of the Rowe family records were lost in a house fire so the Rowes take special precautions now. The important pedigree charts and family tables are kept in suitcases. This way they can be gathered up easily in case of fire or other emergency.

"This will be the greatest gift

I can give my children," Rowe said.

Rowe said the stories she digs up about their ancestors makes the people real to the children and that will help them to understand the importance of family.

Along with understanding the good things, Rowe said genealogists have to be prepared to accept the skeletons.

"Every little bit you find you think 'wow, that's a part of me,'" Rowe said.

Rowe is working to put all the stories she has gathered on paper, but that requires a lot of time and between going to school and working she doesn't have much time.

"As long as I live I will never be done," Rowe said of her genealogy.

Rowe warns genealogists to be prepared to run up against walls every now and then, but to realize that finding one piece of the puzzle will open other doors as well.
